Hon. John E. Massey, Superintendent of Public Instruction of Virginia, has issued to the county and city superintendents of schools and to the county and city treasurers a circular letter showing the apportionment of the educational funds to the various counties and cities. In his remarks preceding the apportionment Mr. Massey says:

"The Auditor of Public Accounts reports that, under the provisions of section soy of the Code, the amount applicable to public free-school purposes out of the revenue assessed for the year is, $737,512.67. This amount is herein apportioned at the rate of $1.1076 per head of school popula-

"The Auditor of Public Accounts will forward to each superintendent a warrant for the amount apportioned to his county or city. Upon receipt of this warrant the superintendent will endorse to same to, and deposit it with the tre surer of his county, together with written statement showing the amou apportioned to and to be placed to the credit of each school district. The super-intendent will also furnish each district clerk a statement showing the sub-appor-

This apportionment is $179,632 in excess of that made last year. As it is based upon the new school census, the rate per head is slightly below that of last year. The new school census, taken in 1895, shows the school population of the State to be 685,865; or an increase of 11,721 since the last census. This money is to be disbursed upon warrants of district boards of trustees, as other school funds are disbursed, and to be used exclusively for the pay of TAMMANY OVATION TO BRYAN. Regardless of a Storm, 50,000 Voters Hear Him.

(New York Journal-30th ulto.) The regular Democracy of New York city proved his loyal devotion to Bryan and Sewall last night. That loyalty, that devotion, has always been traitorproof; last night it was waterproof. The storm that swept the city was said to be tropical. If it was it is necessary to send mackintoshes to mid-Africa. But tropical or Arctic, that storm had no effect upon the Democrats who massed in Tammany Hall and around it to emphasize their welcome to their own can-didates, to vent their spontaneous en-thusiasm and to listen to convincing ar-

Tammany Hall, stronghold of Jeffersonian Democracy, had invited "all citizens of New York who favor popular governmi" to attend the great mass-meeling, out fifty thousand such men accepted a invitation. That was the estimates police captains and others accus-med to crowds. These fifty thousand of police captains and others accustomed to crowds. These fifty thousand were workers. They were voters. There were few boys in the vast assemblage. Such men did more than withstand the storm; they did not feel it. Much stress is here laid on this fact, because it was so remarkable. Those who were out in the storm can appreciate the enthusiasm of that mass-meeting. Those who were forced to stay at home by the storm can understand what kind of determined men stood in the streets for blocks and blocks around Tammany Hall.

These men, these voters, began to

These men, these voters, began to gather at 6 P M. Tammany, hospitable host, had invited them for 7:30 P. M.
They knew the storm was coming. The They knew the storm was coming. The lowering clouds, black and threatening, proclaimed its coming; the whistling wind, sweeping the dust in eddies, heralded it. But more voters came and more until the deluge carried in sheets by the chilly d wet forty-five thousand of them to skin. Four thousand men and one resand women were within Tammany thousand women were within lammany Hall and escaped the wetting. It was all the hall would hold. Outside the crowd filled Fourteenth street between Second and Third avenues to Broadway; filled Third avenue from Thirteenth to Fifteenth street; filled Union Square on the east side from Fourteenth street to Seventeenth street and filled the plaza to Seventeenth street and filled the plaza. north of Union Square. greater assemblage out of doors at night in this city. Over it umbreilas sprang like a tremendous field of mushrooms. The surface cars slowly made their difficult way through it. At the Fourteenth-street station of the Third-Avenue elevated road a big squad of policemen kept the people moving down stairs, that the people arriving on the trains might alight upon the platform. The police were everywhere, and they behaved admirably, for they were sympathetic. They were sympathetic, because they work for a living.

AMERICAN FLAGS.

AMERICAN FLAGS.

A little stream from the sea of people flowed into Tammany Hall through the central doors. Just within the doors small American flags, Democracy's colors, were distributed. Such was the struggle to climb the broad stairway to the hall that the steps were littered with sticks to which the flags were nailed. They were snapped as men pushed and fought with each other. But all good-naturedly. These people filled every inch of the floor. Filled every seat in the big gallery, where a very seat in the big gallery, where a very able lunged band was stationed. Many women were in the balcony, who never could have reached there but for the innate politeness of the voters who made way for them. Those who had been invited to seats in the boxes and a few others entered the hall by the sustern door, and in their winding ascent a few others entered the half by the eastern door, and in their winding ascent passed the dressing-room of Tony Pastor's Theatre, passed from the funnakers, the mummers, to listen to the Man of Destiny and Determination. These boxes were filled with gayly-dressed women, whose toilets added color to the men, whose tonets added cook as scene.

While red lights were burning and rockets were hissing without, the band in the gallery played lively tunes and the people joined in the choruses. Then scddenly the band struck up "My Cantry," Tis of Thee," and the people, with mighty voice, joined in. There was more singling, more cheering, more groaning, for every now and then some deep-throated fellow would spring to his feet and call for "Three groans for Hanna," or for McKinley, as one or the other was the more particular object of his animosity. The respected one or the other was the more particular object of his animosity. The respected Mr. McKinley certainly heard these groans in Canton; Li Hong Ching may have heard them in Peking. And it is necessary to state here, because this narrative is accurate, that the crowd gave three hearty cheers for the New York Levend.

At last "Big Tom" Brennan called the meeting to order. Mr. Brennan was chosen to do that because he has the frame of a giant and can easily be seen, and has the voice of a foghorn, and can easily be heard. He introduced John W. Keller as chairman of the meeting. It is interesting to note that Mr. Keller was interesting to note that Mr. Keller will ducated at Yale College, in New Haven, where some very young sons of gentlemen hooted down William J. Bryan the other day. Mr. Keller, educated at Yale, other day. Mr. Keller, educated at Yale, being of mature judgment, presided at last night's great meeting, and made a

The learned Lord Chief Justice of Eng-

and, Lord Russell, of Killowen, desired to hear the speech of a candidate for the presidency of the United States, and longed to see a Yankee mass-meeting. So the Lord Chief Justice, his lady, and some other ladies, went to Tammany Hall, and the police, having been told who they were, forced a narrow passageway for them from the curb to the door.
But, once inside, the Lord Chief Justice and his party found the crush to oppressive that they wanted to go away. That

Mr. Bryan was approaching; the shouts that. He appeared at the back of the platform. He walked across it between lines of police, close drawn. He stood under the flag-decked booth at the platform's edge.

DEAFENING CHEERS.

Every man and woman in the hall were on their feet waving the little American flags. The yell that went up split the ear. Try to imagine the whistles of a ear. Mr. Bryan stood there, calmly looking about him. It was plain he was delighted.

A flush of pleasure spread over his pale checks and mounted to his high forehead. While the yelling lasted the thoughtful had opportunity to study him. He looks very well, indeed. His locks have been shorn, but, unlike Samson, he seems to have gained in strength. His coat was a cutaway, and he wore a white rose in the buttonhole. MR. BRYAN PLEASED.

To W. P. Hearst, the Journal:

It was the most enthusiastic gathering that I have had the pleasure of addressing, and it, and the crowds gathered outside, convinced me that the sentiment in favor of free silver in this city is growing. favor of free silver in this city is growning steadily. I am feeling well and strong, and this I attribute to the fact that I rest myself at every available moment. I am exceedingly pleased with Tammany's

A VERY VALUABLE FARM
IN CHESTERFIELD COUNTY, VA.,
NEAR GRANITE STATION, ON THE SOUTHERN RAILWAY,
AND
ALL THE NEW IMPROVEMENTS
THEREON. DAWNBROKER'S AUCTION SALE

ON WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1886.

AT 430 O'CLOCK P. M., ON THE PREMISES.

By virtue of two deeds of trust executed to the understaned, by Lena A. Owen and M. M. Owen, her husband, dated, respectively, on August 3, 184, and dated, respectively, on August 3, 184, and in the County Court Clerk's office of Chesterfield county, in Deed-Books 88, page 421, and being required so to do by the beneficiary default having been made in the payment therein secured, we will expose for sale on the day, hour, and place named above, that VERY VALUABLE TRACT OF LAND, lying on both sides of the Hon Air and Westham road, a short distance from the village of Granite. This tract contains 41 1-8 acres, less the land heretofore released to Mrs. Hatcher, 3 acres, ce the same, more or less. The improvements consist of a nice new two-story frame building, containing six rooms, and other improvements. This is a fine chance to get a nice little farm near the city. The siand is good, the neighborhood is first rate, and, being near Granite Depot and post-office, makes this place highly desirable.

For particulars call on the auctioneers. TERMS: Cash as to expenses of sale discharge the following amounts—to will. Under first deed, balance due, $15,94, and under second deed, halance due, $25,90, the residue, if any, upon such terms us will be announced at sale.
